

Hullabalooers...hmmm, maybe Hullabaloons! Yes, I like that.

Dear Hullabaloons,

We have almost 20 signed up. If you haven't, what are you waiting for?

Here's some more info for you and some MAPS!

1) If you haven't signed up on The Trail Not Taken website and linked your Strava acct, you need to do so. This is how you will be tracked on Saturday!

www.thetrailnottaken.com

2) Here is a CalTopo map of the area that has markers on many of the pertinent locations:

<https://caltopo.com/m/KU5R3HF#>

3) Some MAPS!

Attached are two 11x17 maps of the Pandapas Pond trail system. Also attached is a list of 40 trails that sum to 40 miles. On Saturday morning, your task will be to ride as many trails and miles as you can/want between 7am and 2pm. Each completed trail is worth 1 point. Each mile ridden (ON THESE 40 TRAILS) is worth 1 point. So, if you manage to ride them all, you'd get a top score of 80 points. The Trail Not Taken website will calculate this from your Strava track. I'll discuss the trail system in more detail on Friday night and pass out these maps as well (waterproof), but it's a complicated problem to figure out the best route for your ability level, so I wanted everyone to have ample time to look at the maps.

There will be maps coming for the rogaine portion at a later date.

Cheers,
Mark

PS: These maps may change a little in the next couple weeks.